

STEM Academy Financial Disclosure

Important Information on Tuition & Fees

At Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, creator of the Embry-Riddle STEM Academy, the payment of tuition and all other applicable fees becomes an obligation at the time of registration. The Federal Truth in Lending Act requires a complete disclosure of the terms and conditions governing the payment of these obligations and the method of calculating any applicable finance charges.

Failure to make payment in full by the due date may result in administrative withdrawal from classes. In the event that a student's delinquent account is turned over to a collection agency and/or in the event of a suit to collect a delinquent account, the responsible party will be charged all of the University's cost of collection, including attorney's fees.